REFLECTION

Today’s Gospel talks about forgiveness, which is probably one of the toughest things to talk about. It is even more difficult sometimes, asking for forgiveness. How often does one have a row with a friend or a family member but refuse to believe that they are in the wrong. How often is it “not my fault”, but the fault of others. Deep down I’m sure many of us would love to be perfect, and never make any mistakes, but of course this is not true. Each of us make mistakes, and when we offend others then there is a word that we can use but very rarely do, or maybe we use it too often and that word is “sorry”.

Now, don’t for one minute, think that the person here preaching to you today, is an expert on using this word, because I’m not. I can always remember a friend of mine being asked to judge a sand castle competition two summers ago. When he went down onto the beach, he accidentally trod on and destroyed one of the exhibits. I said to him, “Did you apologise”?, he said “Well sort of”, I said “What did you exactly say”?, he said “I told them that it was a silly place to build a sand castle. Then I said sorry”. We all have to realise that forgiveness and living as a loving community before God is Christ’s key commandment.

At the very end of our Gospel passage, Our Lord says that where two or three are gathered in my name, I shall be there with them. Unity within the Christian Church is also important and we hope one day to be part not of a Catholic or Protestant Church, but a member of the Christian Church. But this can only be achieved when we work at unity within our own community. It is then that we can start to work for unity within our world.
