REFLECTION

Thirty Second Sunday in Ordinary Time – Year C

In today’s Gospel we hear that Our Lord is the resurrection and the life and through Him we will never die but have eternal life. I always wonder what Heaven will be like - we know that in Heaven we will have a different life, an eternal life with God. We can only imagine what Heaven is like, to us, it truly is another world which we can only visualise in our minds.

In many ways we can let our imagination run riot when we want to and come up with great images of what Heaven will be like.

Our society at the moment seems to be big into escapism, one thinks of the Harry Potter books and movies which have proved to be very popular - and of course it is not just children who read them but also many adults too. Whilst on the one hand it is great fun and wonderful to read and visualise things, it shows that many people love to escape from the realities of this world into a fictitious world, where people have fun without the pressure of modern living. In general, society is searching for something more than just what we have here on earth. Many in our society are searching for something - that something in many cases, is God. We have God in our lives, we have the consolation of knowing that God is always there for us and that we will have eternal life when we die.

Today when we remember our dead, those who we have known and loved, we also remember the dead from all the wars, let us pray that they are now enjoying their eternal life. In Heaven there are no battles, no pain, no conflict, that is something only of this world. As well as being an eternal life, Heaven is an eternal peace. So today let us pray for peace in our world and that one day there may be peace here on earth as well as in Heaven.
