REFLECTION

BAPTISM OF THE LORD YEAR C

Yet again we see the end of our journey through Christmas, which is now over for another year. Today, our focus is not on the crib, or the wise men or the shepherds, but rather it is on the Baptismal font and our entry into the Church, which each one of us have been through, or for some are hoping to go through.

When we listen to the Gospel, we see that we are now dealing with an adult Jesus who comes from within a crowd and approaches John the Baptist, who has been this great voice crying in the wilderness. This John is a charismatic figure who has been preparing the way for the light or the Word to come into the world and continue the mission that God has given him. It must have been a dramatic sight for John the Baptist to baptise Jesus and then for a voice to have come from heaven saying “You are my son, the beloved”. Imagine his awe when the dove to came to rest on Jesus’ head as a symbol of him receiving the Holy Spirit.

When we are Baptised we too receive the very same mission that Jesus received from God and continued from John. We take on the mission for our generation and then hand it on to the next.

With Baptism comes a duty to carry on the Faith into the future. At every Baptism one is always reminded of the responsibility that both the parents and Godparents take on, by agreeing to bring the baby up in the practice of the Faith.

Adults when they receive full initiation into the Church also take on the same responsibility and mission.

With Baptism we are baptised into the promise of everlasting life. It is our duty to make others have that opportunity, by being a voice for our world today a voice which proclaims the love of God. So in many ways we now take on the mission started by John when he Baptised Jesus and showed us that Jesus truly was one like us. In Christ, God really had become man.
