REFLECTION

Reflection for the Twenty Eighth Sunday Year A

One of the things that I have come to realise, is that when one leads a busy life, one can get very forgetful. One of the issues with Newquay is that the Presbytery is a good ten minutes from the Church, so when I leave of a morning I need to make sure that I have everything with me. The night before, I need to make sure my bag is packed and ready, because come the morning I need to concentrate on breakfast. Being a man, I can only cope with one thing at a time!

Ever since I was at school I have always packed my bag the night before, it means I am less likely to forget something that I will need the following day. I need to be ready for the day to come.

No one knows the future and I can always remember being given a piece of advice from a Nun who taught me at school. She said “Always try to leave the house on good terms with your family and friends, always say ‘Good night’ to those you love before you go to bed or to sleep, because, we never know the future”.

Jesus wants us to be ready for the day when we meet the Father in heaven. Our wedding garment needs to be packed and ready. We need to accept the invitation, because we all want to attend the Wedding Feast of Heaven. One day we all want to be sitting at the table with God.
